

Easton Wilson

OVERVIEW

Easton is a highly accomplished and experienced HR and Learning & Development professional with 20 years' experience in HR/Diversity.

Easton has a wealth of experience operating as a Trainer, NLP Practitioner, Coach and Inclusion consultant. Over the years he has also focused on change management as well as personal and executive coaching.

He has provided Diversity and Inclusion strategic consultation and training, to a wide range of multinational organisations within the private, hospitality, public and charity sectors, across the United Kingdom. He has developed and delivered training programmes, which are both engaging and pragmatic, with clear and measurable outcomes for the client.

HIGHLIGHTS

Easton is passionate about fairness, developing people, building skills, confidence and self-awareness and continually strives to be inspirational, down to earth, open and engaging.

- ❖ Easton was responsible for the 'Tomorrows Planners' scheme, the first of its kind to be rolled out nationally, primarily to boost the proportion of planners from black and minority ethnic (BAME) groups.
- ❖ Easton's work has won a number of awards – including Civil Service Diversity awards (2006), Royal Town Planning Institute (RTPI) Award 2006 and the Guardian Public Sector Award 2005.
- ❖ Prior to embarking on his career as a learning consultant, Easton worked in hospitality management for First Leisure Ltd, and a number of known bars and restaurants, as a Restaurant Area Manager.
- ❖ Easton has previously worked for a London based skills development agency as a programme manager for the ODPM (formally office of the Office for the Deputy Prime Minister) now part of the Home Office.

